

“If you educate a man you educate an individual, but if you educate a woman you educate a nation.”

– Old African Proverb

Podcast

Hello and welcome to Educate a Nation, the podcast where we discuss women's education and rights around the world. Every episode, we feature incredible women who speak about their own education, the barriers they've faced, and why it's so important for women and girls around the world to be educated.

My name is Caroline Gershell, and I am a high school senior in New York City and the founder of Educate a Nation. I'm passionate about politics, history, education, and women's rights, and through this podcast, I hope to illuminate listeners to the challenges and successes of educated women around the world.
